In the discussion of the conference report on the river and harbor bill in the Senate yesterday the Potomac river and flats appropriation was frequently mentioned as one of the provisions which should, by all means, be maintained. The sentiment expressed in behalf of this appropriation was almost equivalent to instructions to the conferees to insist upon it, and the latter will, no doubt, so regard it. The flats amendment was spoken of by some who opposed the bill as a whole as one of its redeeming features. If the aggregate of the bill is to be reduced the reductions should not all be at the expense of the Senate amendments. In the light of the expressed partiality for the flats provision, perhaps the House conferees will see the wisdom of ceasing

When the whole truth and nothing but the truth in regard to antecedent and current events in Egypt is laid before the world, it is likely enough that but little will be found for which to commend Arabi Pasha and those acting with him. It may turn out, indeed, that they are wholly bad, and that they deserve nothing but maure for the part they have taken in the present tragic affairs in that unhappy land, from their beginning until now. Meantime, however, it is not well to accept as absolutely true and uncolored everything that comes from that quarter, nor to condemn the party of Egypt and its leaders in advance, and without a hearing. It must be remembered that all the intelligence in regard to the first riot in Alexandria and everything that has sin e transpired in and around that city has come from English sources. filtered through English channels, and colored by English influences and interests. It may possibly all be true, and it may even be that the whole truth has not yet been told; but it is not the habit of John Bull either to hurt his own case or to help that of his adversaries by his own shoung of it. It should be borne in mind that Arabi Pasha has been so situated that his version of matters has not been heard. When he has a chance at the ear of the world, it is possible a different story may be told; and until such opportunity is had it might be well to suspend judgment in the case.

Thompson for membership of the State committee, but he was subsequently elected chairman of the executive committee-a really more important position than the one he first sought. The reputed organizer of the young democratic movement was Mr. Bookwalter, who was defeated for governor in the last State canvass. He and his friends charged that he was defeated by the apathy of the party machine; but it was evident to all impartial observers that Mr. Bookwalter was beaten because there were some thousands more republican than felt that he had a grievance against the party bosses for not having extended to him a cordial support, and it was his purpose, according to eminent democratic authority, to wipe out the old leaders. It is plain enough that if this was really his object he failed, in part, at least.

Count De Lesseps has telegraphed from Alexandria to Paris that immediate action is necessary to protect the Suez canal, and that awaiting the re-Bult of the conference is ridiculous. When the Count embarked for Egypt he seemed to labor under the impression that his presence alone would protect the canal; but after a closer study of the situation he has decided that he needs some assis-

By a vote of two to one the Virginia board of sinking fund commissioners has decided to annul the contract under which the new (readjusted) bonds of that state were printed, and the contract be awarded to another company. The state treasurer, as a member of the board, voted originally A VERY SUPERIOR QUALITY OF TAPISSIER'S PARIS BLACK CACHEMIRE SILK, at $3. This surer, as a member of the board, voted originally spite the appeals and threats of the party bosses, who had committed themselves to another company which put in a higher bid, but he has finally been won over. By his vote the contract is anaulled. The company which obtained the contract and executed the bonds intends, so it is announced, to bring suit against the state for damages, and, in the end, Virginia may have a heavy bill to foot for this double work of engraving.

Arabi Pasha has apparently left nothing undone that would tend to strengthen his position with the Egyptians and weaken the Khedive. He has apparently resorted to all means in his power to arouse prejudice against the English and incite hostility to their creature. He has employed his SSSS EEE AAA T time, since retiring from Alexandria, profitably in this direction, as the action of the notables in their meeting at Cairo shows. They have formally denounced the Khedive as a traitor, and have espoused the cause of Arabi. But the most sigdeclaration of war against England, and their call upon all good moslems to join in fighting against her. This gives to the situation a more serious aspect than it has hitherto assumed. It signifies a bitter and bloody war before the rule that England insists upon can be established over Egypt, and even after organized resistance to the Khedive shall have been suppressed it may require English bayonets to maintain him. The appeal to the religious fanaticism of the Mahommedan is one that awakens all the courage of his barbaric nature. It is this sentiment that Arabi Pasha has been laboring to arouse, and now he will kindle it into a flame of religious intolerance, bigotry, and destruction. The effect of these inflammatory appeals and proclamations is visible even within | carry them over to another season. We are also buying the city at Alexandria, where English authority is any bargains that are being offered in supreme. The natives are sullen, and even insolent, and no doubt many, if not most of them, are secretly in league with Arabi. The indications are that the Egyptian war has not fairly commenced yet. The British government seems to realize the proportions of the task it has undertaken. The expedition that is now fitting out for Bgypt is to be increased by an additional 10,000 men, and preparations are being made to follow it with another.

The straightout republicans of the second (Norfolk) Virginia Congressional district, have distinctly proclaimed their opposition to the coalitionists by the nomination of Mr. Dezendorf, the present incumbent for Congress. This action assures a three-cornered fight in that district, as the democrats and coalitionists will each, no doubt, name a candidate. This fact, however, is not calculated to discourage Mr. Dezendorf, as it was precisely in that kind of contest that he won his former election. They were then two candidates, democrat and coalition, in the field, besides him- TO BUY WHERE YOU CAN GET THE ARTICLE self. In the fourth district the coalitionists in county conventions are instructing for Mr. Jorgensen, the present incumbent, and he will probably have a walk-over. In the ninth district Mr. Fulkerson, the present member, will again be a candidate. He is making an independent race. He has advised his supporters not to follow either Mahone or Massey, as the former, he says, would lead them into the republican party, and the latter would entice them into the democratic ranks. Virginia politics has many phases.
